

I-90 Corridor E-mail Update

August 29, 2007

In this issue:

- WSDOT Has Your Labor Day Travel Information
- Slowing Traffic on Snoqualmie Pass Increases Public Safety
- One of the State's Biggest Freeway Closures is Over
- Find Out New Ways "Burl" and His Friends are Crossing I-90

WSDOT Has Your Labor Day Travel Information

WSDOT advises travelers to plan, check, and prepare for Labor Day weekend. Traffic managers say more drivers will be heading to I-90 and US 2 for Labor Day. You can now view color-coded maps that show where traffic is predicted to be heavy and light so you can alter your trip accordingly .

Slowing Traffic on Snoqualmie Pass Increases Public Safety

You might have seen a helicopter flying over I-90 near Snoqualmie Pass this summer. Research work is needed for the I-90 Snoqualmie Pass East Project. WSDOT traffic control is slowing traffic in the area so drivers are not distracted when the low flying helicopter passes over the freeway.

One of the State's Biggest Freeway Closures is Over

WSDOT opens lanes on Northbound I-5 in Seattle, drivers get smoother and safer ride. WSDOT thanks drivers for making tough traffic project a lot better.

See Where the I-90 Team Has Been and What We're Saying

The I-90 Snoqualmie Pass East communications team has been visiting fairs and community days events over the past few months to educate the public on road projects. Find out where we've been, and where we are going next.

Find Out New Ways "Burl" and His Friends are Crossing I-90

Burl the Squirrel is a cartoon character used to educate children about the importance of the I-90 Snoqualmie Pass East Project. Learn more about his adventures along the I-90 corridor.