

Alaskan Way Viaduct Replacement Program

7.12

Understanding the program's cost and funding

Two projects will replace the SR 99 Alaskan Way Viaduct along Seattle's waterfront. The viaduct's central waterfront section will be replaced with a bored tunnel beneath downtown Seattle. The southern mile of the viaduct, near Seattle's port and stadiums, is being replaced with a new roadway that has wider lanes, meets current earthquake standards and improves mobility for people and goods in the south of downtown area.

The viaduct replacement projects are estimated to cost $3.1 billion. These projects have $2.8 billion in committed funding from the state gas tax, federal sources and tolls on users. The Port of Seattle also committed $300 million to the replacement program.

As part of the replacement program, King County, the City of Seattle and the Port of Seattle are planning street, transit, seawall and waterfront improvements. Each jurisdiction is responsible for their own projects' management, environmental work, design and construction.

The Alaskan Way Viaduct Replacement Program includes projects led by the Washington State Department of Transportation, King County, City of Seattle and the Port of Seattle.

Executive Oversight Committee

In 2010 Governor Gregoire formed an oversight committee to review the projects to replace the Alaskan Way Viaduct and serve as a single point of accountability for cost, schedule and scope issues. The committee receives updates from State, City of Seattle and King County departments of transportation, as well as Port of Seattle staff, on delivery of the projects, including major milestones, contracting approach, risk management and expenditures.

Information provided to the committee is made available to the public to ensure accountability and transparency. The public is welcome to attend oversight committee meetings to listen to the presentations and provide written comments. Materials presented to the committee are available on the program website at www.wsdot.wa.gov/Projects/Viaduct/POCmaterials.htm.

The members of the Executive Oversight Committee include:

- Governor Christine Gregoire – committee chair
- State Sen. Mary Margaret Haugen
- State Rep. Judy Clibborn
- King County Executive Dow Constantine
