On October 14, Alaskan Way shifted to the west side of the Alaskan Way Viaduct. This new position will keep the road open during the upcoming SR 99 closure, the viaduct removal, and the City of Seattle’s construction of a new Alaskan Way street in the footprint of the viaduct.

Alaskan Way will be narrowed to one lane in each direction for utility and signal work as part of the Pier 62 rebuild project. Toward the end of November, Alaskan Way around Pike St will expand to two lanes in each direction.
